NEW SURTAXES
BOOST INCOMECommittee Proposal Will Hit Thousands of Non-
Income Payers

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 20.—Uncounted thousands of persons who won't have to pay the normal federal tax on their 1941 incomes will have to dig down anyhow, informed legislators said today, and pay surtaxes under the new revenue program tentatively approved by the house ways and means committee.

This paradoxical situation results from the fact that the 10 per cent earned income credit allowed in the computation of normal income taxes cannot, under the committee's plan, be deducted in figuring surtaxes.

Thus, a married couple with two dependents and $3,000 of net income would not pay any normal income tax but would be subject to a surtax of $11.

See Substantial Increase
Committee officials said no estimate had been made of the number of such new taxpayers but asserted the total would be substantial.

The committee gave tentative approval yesterday to the major provisions of the new tax bill. The two big points were the imposition of a graduated system of individual income surtaxes which would more than double the 1940 payments of all individuals, and a drastically increased corporations' excess profits levy.

The individual surtaxes were counted on to produce approximately $1,055,700,000 of the $3,500,000,000 in new revenue sought under the tentative program.

9 SUMMONED
FOR ARMY ON JUNE 30 CALL

List of Soldiers-Elect from
Salem District Are
Announced

16 LEAVE TODAY
FROM LOCAL AREA

Advance Call No. 22, July
11, Is Received By
Clerk Griffiths

Headed for service with the country's armed forces, a group of 42 young men from Columbiana county left the Memorial building at 9:30 a. m. today, bound for Cleveland for final examinations and actual induction into the army.

The group included 16 north-county men, inducted through the Salem selective service office, and delegation from Lisbon and East Liverpool. Lee Christen of Salem was named leader of this unit.

List 9 For June 30

Simultaneously with the departure of this group, George M. Griffiths, clerk of the Salem selective service board, announced the names of nine young men from the Salem area who will be inducted into the service Monday, June 30, in Call No. 21. Griffiths also announced that an advance call, No. 22, for three men to go on July 11, has been received at the local office.

The men called for Monday, June 30, are:

John Beery, 639 E. State st.
Earl Leroy Baker, 293 N. Union ave.

Richard Marion Gilson, 797 Perry st.

Ramon Whinery, R. D. 4, Lisbon.

Lester Harold Conrad, R. D. 3, Alliance.

Carl Joseph Fieldhouse, R. D. 4, Alliance.

Leo John Miller, 135 W. Salem st., Columbiana.

Dominic Vincent Mowery, 67 Washington st., Leetonia.

Arthur Francis Wernet, R. D. Kensington.

When this group departs, the Salem board will have sent out 40 men from this district during June, including 15 on the first call, and 16 today.

Receive Testaments

The Gideon society took part in the simple ceremonies attendant upon the departure of the young men this morning from the Memorial building.

For the first time, pocket testaments, the gift of the society, were distributed, one to each inductee, the presentation being made by Rev. Andrew B. Starbuck, pastor of the Friends church here, who had been asked to act in behalf of the Gideon organization.

When the young men had boarded the bus, climbing in with delegations from Lisbon and East Liverpool districts, Rev. Starbuck held

EAST PALESTINE
WILL MAKE GLASS

EAST PALESTINE, June 20.—The production of blown and hand-pressed glass specialties is expected to be started in about three weeks at the plant of the recently organized East Palestine Glass Co., in the McClure building, E. Clark st., D. L. McFadden of Beaver Falls, Pa., president and general manager, announced today.

Company officials are supervising the construction of a 60-foot annealing kiln, two-day tanks where the glass is made, a mold oven, cooling system and other equipment which will convert the former building into one of the most modernly equipped glass furnaces in this area. Plans for the factory, which will have a daily capacity of about five tons, were made by McFadden, a veteran hand presser, who has been in the glass business for more than 40 years.

The factory will manufacture glass specialties from models to be sent in by purchasing companies, inventors and other industries.

U.S. Sub, 33 Aboard, Overdue
In Test Off Isle Of Shoals

Down In 375 Feet of Water, Old O-9, Recently Recommissioned, Missing 7 Hours

By The Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 20.—The navy reported today that one of its oldest submarines, the O-9, a small undersea boat recently brought back into commission, was seven hours overdue on a test dive off the Isle of Shoals, not far from where the Squalus sank two years ago with the loss of 26 lives.

The submarine went down about 375 feet below the surface, the navy said.

"The navy department is seriously concerned as to the safety of the vessel, and everything possible is being done to locate it," the navy said.

Two officers and 31 men were on the O-9 roster and it was assumed by the navy department here that all were aboard.

Deep concern was expressed by navy men here because of the great depth of the water in which the O-9 was operating.

When the Squalus went down in this same area in May, 1939, she rested in 240 feet of water, and, by the first actual rescue use of a diving bell, 33 men were saved.

Even at 240 feet, however, navy divers were working under conditions they hardly had been called upon to face before in a life and death operation.

Navy men took note, too, of the fact that, whereas the Squalus was

Russo-Nazi War Would Show
Soviet Army's Real Strength

Reds May Amass Force of 5,000,000 Men, But Equipping Them Would Be Real Problem

By JOHN H. MARTIN
Associated Press Cable Staff

If Adolf Hitler should decide to attack Soviet Russia he would be cracking a great riddle of this warring era—the true strength of the Red army which guards an area almost three times the size of the United States.

Some military authorities have estimated the Red Army's potential trained manpower at 14,000,000 men, but it was stated in Moscow in 1938 that the actual effective strength was 2,000,000.

Fully mobilized, the Soviets might amass an army of 5,000,000 men or more, it has been indicated, but this controversial question leads to a string of others—whether there is enough modern equipment to arm them, whether the Russian railways and motor roads can supply them, and whether the Red air force could hope to match the highly-successful luftwaffe.

Added to all these is morale. Little Finland handed the world a surprise by holding off the Red legions for months during the winter of 1939-40.

Joseph Stalin has given the Red army a thorough overhauling since then, discarding the political commissars, re-establishing a system of generals and officers' ranks, and introducing the military salute again to improve discipline.

Masses of truck-borne infantry, new motorized artillery, dive bombers and other sharp machinery are being built up.

Actual Campaign to Raise
Quota of $3,000 Gets Under Way

DONATIONS TO BE TAKEN UP TUESDAY

Drive Extended Through Northern Area of County

Pledge envelopes for the United Service Organizations fund campaign in Salem were distributed to every home in the city today by members of the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts as the actual drive to raise the quota of $3,000 got under way.

Teams working under the direction of captains appointed recently by Campaign Manager R. S. McCulloch and his assistant David Bevan, will collect the contributions next Tuesday in a one-day wind-up of the campaign.

At the same time the campaign was extended throughout the northern half of the county, all communities working together under the general supervision of the Salem committee to raise a United Defense fund for Northern Columbiana county.

This outside territory has been organized by Atty. Ralph Atkinson, with the result that every village and township is cooperating in the movement. Assisting Atkinson is J. Howard Sinclair of Hanoverton, who has organized the campaign in Hanover, West, Knox and Butler townships.

Quotas Assigned

Each of these townships has been given a quota of $100, Lisbon and Center township have a quota of $400, East Palestine $550, Columbiana $300, Leetonia $200, New Waterford $150 and the other townships $100 each.

Organization leaders in the various units follow:

Columbiana—W. B. Miller, general chairman; Hy McGrath, campaign chairman; Paul Reeves treasurer; Charles Fisher, secretary; Fairfield township—Mark Klingsmith, chairman.

Leetonia and Salem township—L. F. Mellinger, chairman.

Hanover township—Northwest, Mr. and Mrs. William Humphrey; New Garden, Mrs. Alta Baker; Northeast, Miss Thelma Arter; Hanover village, Merle Ewing; Carlton Campbell and Miss Elizabeth Rush; Dunganon parish, Rev. Father Palm.

Woman Flies Plane
Across Atlantic

LONDON, June 20.—Blonde Jacqueline Cochran, first woman to fly a bomber across the Atlantic, arrived in London today after delivering an American-built Hudson bomber and instantly became the envy of every woman in England—she brought three dozen pairs of silk stockings with her.

It was the American flier's first flight across the Atlantic but she said she was "at the controls all the way and had a wonderful trip completely without incident."

She said her plans were not complete but added that she "probably" would fly back to the United States and "hoped" to fly more bombers across.

"My only companion was Captain Grafe Carlisle, who captained the craft and did the navigating," said Miss Cochran, who in private life is Mrs. Floyd Odom.

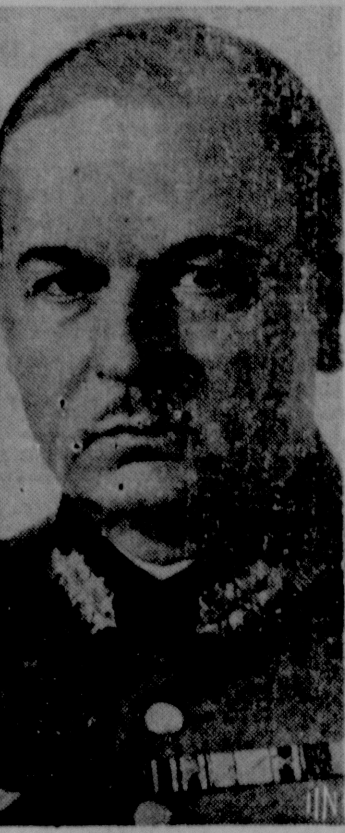

"The ship was wonderful to handle," she continued. "This was my first trip across the Atlantic and we had plenty of sandwiches, boiled eggs and tomato juice." She said it was her lucky number and promptly got room 913 in a London hotel.

"I think British women are doing a grand wartime job," she commented, "and I want to meet more of them."

Giving Information To Secret Service

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, June 20.—An authorized spokesman said today that the German government has evidence that some American consular officials gathered information in Germany for the British secret service.

This charge was made in explanation of the German request of yesterday for the closing of United States consulates in Germany and seven German-conquered European nations by July 15.

"We have evidence that information gathered by American consular officials was directly submitted to the British secret service in whose behalf they acted," the spokesman said.

He said Germany had proof of dozens of cases in which, he said, data collected by the officials was sent to "a certain central office" in Washington and there made directly available to Britain.

Leinold B. Morris, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy, discussed increasingly tense German-American relations at the foreign office today.

Many problems urgently requiring clarification were said to have been raised by the German request and by other issues, including the sinking of the American steamer Robin Moor.

Besides the consulates, the German request applied also to American Express company offices in Germany, occupied France, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Serbia and Greece, and they, too, were getting ready to close.

Says Without Qualification
Robin Moor Was Sunk

"We Are Not Yielding and Do Not Propose To",
Says President

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 20.—President Roosevelt described the sinking of the Robin Moor, today as ruthless, and the act of "an international outlaw" and declared that the United States did not propose to yield use of the high seas to Germany.

The President made his pronouncement on the sinking of the American vessel in a special message to congress which permitted of stronger language than a formal diplomatic note.

Mr. Roosevelt stated without qualification that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine.

Went Down May 21

The Robin Moor went down in the south Atlantic on May 21 and all its passengers and crew subsequently reached safety.

Survivors said a German submarine torpedoed and shelled the ship.

First word of the sinking came June 9, when the Brazilian ship Orazio flashed word she had picked up a lifeboat containing 11 survivors. Thirteen days later a British vessel arrived at Cape Town with the 36 other persons who had been on the Robin Moor.

(The first boatload of survivors picked up drifted in the mid-Atlantic 13 days, the others for 13 days.)

Mr. Roosevelt proposed to congress no line of action or retaliation.

Apparently he chose the vehicle of a special message so he could couch his protest in the most forceful language at his command.

Nor was there any disclosure what steps the government might be contemplating to protect American merchant vessels on the high seas.

It was regarded as doubtful, in order not to tip Germany off on what to expect, that there would be any disclosure on this point—whether in the field of arming cargo ships or of bringing the navy into play to protect them.

Mr. Roosevelt told congress the Robin Moor was sunk without provision for the safety of the passengers and crew and despite the fact that the ship's American na-

How To Visit Men
In Training Camps

Those planning on visiting friends or relatives in military camps should make definite plans in advance if they wish to avoid delay and often disappointment, Albert P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club, said today.

The club is daily receiving many calls from people who are contemplating a visit to army training camps and do not realize the complex problem of locating some individual among many thousands, often with similar names.

The club official outlined a few things to do before visiting soldier friends or relatives. He suggests:

1. Know the exact location of the camp, number of division, number of regiment, battalion or squadron, letter designating company, battery or troop and branch of service such as infantry, quarter master corps or ordnance.

2. Check on visiting hours. Usually Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are free time for men in camps, unless on duty. It is best to find out from the men themselves in advance of a visit.

3. The season of maneuvers is ahead and it is also advisable to find out whether the person is in camp or field.

4. Be careful when taking pictures and inquire before taking a picture which might conceivably be of interest to foreign agents.

5. The camps have military police at entrances to posts, who will direct visitors to the division or regimental headquarters.

TRAFFIC AND PARKING

Traffic congestion on downtown State street may be cleared to a certain extent by the use of one special traffic officer stationed at Lundy and State streets, as city council has authorized, on Saturday nights, but it seems like tackling only one-fourth of the job. If traffic is to be kept moving, officers should be stationed at Edlworth, Broadway and Lincoln intersections, as well as Lundy. It can't be kept moving from the center of the line if congestion exists on both ends. One wonders why the councilman who proposed this action didn't go all the way and really do a good job of it.

Experience on the Memorial day week-end proved that officers directing traffic at the four busy intersections can keep the steady flow of traffic moving much faster than by use of traffic lights. In fact, the lights cause most of the congestion as traffic flows from all directions into the State street bottleneck. Why not go a step further and provide traffic officers at these intersections on Sundays as well as Saturday nights? The extra cost would be relatively small during the summer months when through traffic is at its peak as, by shifting the duties of regular policemen, only one or two extra officers would be required.

Parking on the rather narrow street adds to the traffic congestion and double parking, all too frequent in Salem even for a few minutes, jams up traffic in a hurry. Parking meters may be the solution to parking troubles here, but some of the merchants are not yet sold on the idea, even though they seem to be solving the parking problem in many other cities. Before going into the meter question too seriously, perhaps shoppers could find a space for their cars occasionally if police officers would enforce the parking rules day in and day out. Too many cars are parked for several hours at a time on busy downtown streets in violation of parking regulations.

But the policemen cannot do the job without help. They can mark cars daily and leave a ticket on those found to be over-parked, but if the owners know they can escape without a fine their disregard for the tickets fails to help the parking situation. A few test cases probably would prove that merchants and professional men with downtown offices are the real offenders. The spaces should be left open for shoppers, especially those from out of town, and leniency should be shown them, not Salem offenders.

A SAD ANNIVERSARY

Ten years ago, with the American people beginning to get uneasy about the collapse of the boom, the Hoover debt moratorium was being arranged in the world's capitals. The news finally was sprung on June 21. It was received enthusiastically—first of a series of white rabbits to hex the depression.

Results of the moratorium were to be as follows: Relieved of the burden of debt payment for one year, distressed countries were to pull themselves together and surge back into prosperity; the depression, which President Hoover believed to be the result of international complications, was to be managed out of existence by international cooperation; there was to be a resurgence of goodwill; Mr. Hoover himself, was to become an international statesman, with a good chance of being reelected in 1932. The picture was rosy in 1931.

It seems longer ago now than it was. By hindsight, it looks as though the debt moratorium, which was to become in time the equivalent of debt suspension, was something that had about as much effect as closing a window in the middle of a thunderstorm. The powers had fought a war they couldn't afford and were unable to deal with the consequences. The United States, which had used its resources to influence the outcome, hoping to become the world's creditor, won that distinction and was left holding the bag.

The depression grew worse, instead of better. It was routed in Germany finally by a new war boom. It was routed in Great Britain by a counter-boom, which unfortunately got under way too late to offset Germany's newly developed military power. It has been routed in the United States by a counter-counter boom, to do what Great Britain alone can't do—stop Germany. And the World War debts, which were to be put on the shelf and forgotten for a year, now are being hidden under the debts for World War II.

Significantly, no one seems to think the new debts are going to be repaid. Perhaps that measures the world's awareness of what war means; financially, it's a dead loss.

SOMEBODY'S WRONG

Secretary of War Stimson is latest of a long line of forewarners trying to prepare Americans for a long war. He thinks it may be long enough to justify beginning the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, which is to say he looks for the war to continue indefinitely. Even A. Hitler is now saying the war may go on and on.

Aside from Mr. Stimson's warning and all others of a similar nature, the possibility of a long war would gain more converts, assuming more converts are needed, if more persons were warning that it would be a short war. There is a strange perversity in human nature that creates distrust of things that are taken for granted.

There is experience, furthermore, to warn that the men who profess to know about such things rarely do. In World War I only a handful of non-conformists believed the decision would take more than a few months. The experts could prove on paper that the war was going to be over before anyone could get hurt.

At the outset of World War II only a few non-conformists, going against the prevailing trend, said it would be a short war. The experts, remembering the other war, meanwhile had switched and were predicting a long war of attrition in which the enemy, having been worn to a frazzle, would give up. Under the circumstances, it wouldn't be a bad idea to get down a few dollars at reasonable odds on a short war. There's money to be made on betting against the experts.

SCORE CARD

Probably for the same reason that fans keep score at baseball games, some spectators keep score at wars. Their score card for World War I matched with their card for World War II shows these interesting facts:

German credits, taken over this time after a year and 9½ months, weren't touched the other time till Germany was at war with the United States. Loans to the Allies weren't made by the government the other time till war was declared, but this time were made six months after hostilities began in Europe. Conscription the other time wasn't used for a month and 10 days after war was declared and this time was used a year and 15 days after the trouble began abroad.

What this means is anybody's guess, but it probably indicates a trend.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, June 21

THIS may prove to be a day of conflicting interests with sudden and swift action in the direction of probably dramatic achievements or thrilling adventure, but perhaps brought to a stern halt by the drag of duties, responsibilities or obligations. With these conscientiously managed there is great promise of unusual enterprise, with increased fortunes and advancement of surprising nature. This may be accomplished by tact, finesse, or strategy or by influential personages. In sentimental relations there may be cherished culminations.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of an eventful and thrilling year, with much activity culminating in great happiness, achievement and also dramatic denouement. While all points to unusual adventure, with advanced position and expanding financial status, yet there may be certain drawbacks in the way of obligations or responsibilities, to be handled with tact.

A child born on this day although having extraordinary talents, originality and ingenuity may also be stable, dependable and conscientious. It should have subtlety and magnetism.

Those of us who have been keeping our fingers on the pulse of world events cannot help but feel that there is a great social change in the offing. Whether we like it or not, we might as well admit that civilization as we know it is on its death bed.

As for myself, I have anticipated its death for many years. I could see the system constantly growing weaker. The crisis is now here. All that is left to do is walk the floor and let nature take its course.

In thinking the thing over, I have come to the conclusion that history hasn't benefitted the race very much in a constructive way. Although the record of the past is fairly accurate, we have failed to benefit by it as we could and should. It has been read only for the purpose of circumventing the obligations that progressive social conditions would have us to assume. Instead of reading to learn how to discharge those obligations, how to accept and prepare for new conditions, we proceed as if life were a static condition instead of a process of becoming.

It is this habit of rejecting the new that causes history to repeat itself. The race has been enclosing its civilizations within certain boundaries beyond which no citizen nor class of citizens might go without punishment. Such enclosures have been responsible for nearly all the martyrdoms and revolutions of history.

And so it has continued from the dawn of history up to the present day when, again, there has been reached a point where history is repeating itself. Again we see citizens and classes of citizens who care to pass beyond the confines of a civilization. Again we see the punishment that is being inflicted upon them, and again, as a consequence, see ourselves beset with a bloody revolution.

Such is the hell that the race periodically creates for itself by trying to circumvent the so-called ideologies of its day.

Nevertheless, the ideologies of one age have the habit of becoming the realities of the next. Christianity for instance, is still an ideology. Although nearly two thousand years have lapsed since its inception, it has never functioned in mankind's daily walks of life. It was originally adopted for that purpose with the belief that it would bring heaven to earth, but no sooner had it been established than it became a religion of faith and worship and as such was made to serve the same secular order of things that obtained under the mandates of Jupiter and the lesser gods.

Rome! The Eternal City!! Despite the adoption of Christianity, the same secular institutions that functioned in the days of Jesus and which He condemned only to be crucified, are still with us.

We are just beginning to realize that the adoption of Christianity simply as a system of faith and worship has changed nothing in the human scheme of life. As long as the old pagan order of things prevails, Christianity will remain but an ideal. It can't be otherwise because it is impossible for Christianity and the old secular order to function on the same plain of life.

I predict that the present revolutions going to destroy much of the faith-and-worship aspect of Christianity and that much of its economic phase will survive—not so much because of any sentiment or reverence for its author, but because it seems to be the only way out.

PROBLEMS OF TRAFFIC INCREASE

Victims Are at Fault In Many Accidents

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The problem of fatal vehicle accidents in the United States is becoming more and more pressing. They are useless and unnecessary deaths and any light that we have on the subject in placing responsibility should be evaluated.

Three years' study of fatal accidents in an Ohio county indicates, for one thing, that most of the fatalities occur to pedestrians and the guilt for the accident or death must be placed, in the large majority of cases, on the victim—that is, the pedestrian. This rather upsets our ideas that the driver is always to be blamed.

The faults of the pedestrian which resulted in death are largely accounted for by: crossing an intersection against a signal, crossing a street in the middle of the block, walking between parked autos, and being struck by a car backing up. Being in the street on roller skates accounted for only one death in 500 and riding a bicycle accounted for nine deaths in 500.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Data On Accidents

The favorite age for accidents is 50 to 54. October is the most dangerous month of the year, and Saturday the most dangerous day of the week, and from 8 to 9 o'clock the most dangerous time of day.

The type of accidents is given as follows:

	No. of Cases.
Collision of two automobiles .....	83 5
Collision of automobile and pedestrian .....	395 54
Collision of truck and pedestrian .....	35 14
Collision of street car and pedestrian .....	8 3
Collision of automobile and truck .....	23 0
Collision of automobile and bicycles .....	0 9
Collision of automobile and train .....	22 4
Collision of automobile and street car .....	18 1
Collision of automobile and safety zone .....	25 0
Others .....	95 12
Total .....	704 162

Dr. S. R. Gerber, of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, concludes his study with the following information:

Cause of Accident

"The great number of fatalities from vehicular accidents occurred among healthy individuals, chiefly male adults in the prime of life and in the period of greatest productivity. The accidents resulting in their death occurred, in the vast majority of cases, during the leisure hours of these individuals, chiefly in the evening or the early morning hours and during the weekends. These accidents occurred under ideal weather conditions, on good dry roads and under good lighting conditions.

Pedestrians Often to Blame

"For the largest number of victims were pedestrians. In the majority of cases, these victims were to some degree guilty of the accident. The head is the most frequently injured portion of the anatomy. It has been demonstrated that in all groups of victims, pedestrians, drivers of automobiles and the other groups, there was an extremely high incidence of alcoholism. In regard to the children, the deaths occurred at a period when they were not at school and not under the surveillance of the school authorities.

In conclusion, it cannot be too emphatically stressed that, by far, the guilt for the accident and death of the individual must be placed, in the vast majority of cases, upon the victim. Alcoholism with the attendant varying degrees of alcoholic intoxication can be considered the greatest single factor. Responsibility for the death of school children in the vehicular accidents must be placed upon the parents in large measure for lack of parental supervision of the activity of the children outside of the school hours.

Questions and Answers

H. E. B.: "Wasp bites affect me like blood poisoning. What acid is in the sting of a yellow jacket? Do any of our foods contain this same acid?"

Answer—Bees, wasps and yellow jackets deliver formic acid in their sting. There is some formic acid in fruits but the digestive juices modify it so that it does not produce the same result as when injected by the insect.

Mahoning County Field Day Planned

Saturday, July 19, will be a red letter day for rural residents of Mahoning county, for that is the date for the second annual county-wide Rural Field day at the fair grounds near Canfield.

Held for the first time last summer this event proved so popular that its permanence is assured, and a special organization, now known as the Mahoning Rural Organization council, has been formed to arrange the field day each year and to handle other matters requiring joint action by the various rural groups in the county.

Committees Named
At a recent meeting of the council, committees were named to outline detailed plans for the field day and work toward that end in a progressing rapidly.

Another important meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, July 2, at the Dublin grange hall near Canfield, to draw up final arrangements and assign specific duties to additional committees. Every organization in Mahoning county is being asked to send at least one representative to this meeting, and all other persons interested are welcome to attend, it is reported.

Committees named to date include the following: Amateur horse pulling contest, A. A. Less, chairman; antique show, A. G. Coburn, chairman; old time parade, J. C. Hedge; sports, P. C. Heintzelman; music, Mrs. Florence B. McBride; speakers, Frank Agnew; finance, Wade N. Wehr.

According to County Agent J. C. Hedge, rural groups in the county are showing considerable interest not only in the field day but also in the inter-organization council and its program.

Farm Groups Co-operate

Groups which are cooperating in this activity include: Granges, farm bureaus, milk marketing associations, North East Ohio Poultry associations, the various dairy breed associations, Dairy Herd Improvement associations, home extension groups, farm women's clubs, 4-H clubs, P. T. A.'s, rural churches, youth council, horticultural society, potato growers association and the vegetable growers organization.

According to tentative plans already drawn up, the second annual field day on July 19 will get under way at 9:30 a. m. with the horse pulling contest. This will be followed by the old time parade at 11 o'clock. At noon a picnic dinner will be spread and during the afternoon a complete program will be offered, featuring an outstanding speaker. Games and contests of all sorts will be presented throughout the day.

Further detailed plans will be announced later.

Where Are We Going?

DETROIT—Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors Corp., declares that "we have been looking too much toward where we came from and too little where we are going" in an address before a Stanford university symposium on industrial research.

TITUSVILLE, Pa.—This city is looking for a new dog-catcher—preferably one who is not a dog-lover. Maurice Daly, the last dog-catcher, held the post only two days before resigning with the explanation: "That's a job for somebody who doesn't like dogs."

Liked "Fishes"

Robin McCullough

Among the 35 survivors of the Robin Moor who spent 13 days in an open boat, in the Atlantic was Robin McCullough, above, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. McCullough of Cleveland. The McCulloughs were enroute to South Africa. Little Robin told newsmen at Cape Town, Union of South Africa, where he and the others were landed, that he liked the long boat ride and the "pretty fishes" (sharks).

REAL ESTATE TAX WILL BE DUE SOON

Assessments Are Those for Second Half of 1940

LISBON, June 20 — County Treasurer Olen H. Dawson stated today that preparations for the second half real estate tax collection are nearing completion and that statements will be mailed from his office on Aug. 1, which has been set as the opening date of the coming collection. Taxpayers will have until Sept. 10 to pay without penalty.

The assessments due at this time are those charged for the second half of 1940 and prior to the enactment of the present laws would have been due and payable on or before June 20. Acts of the state legislature in recent years have changed the former tax collection procedure and it is now mandatory by law that the treasurer keep his books open for the payment of taxes until Sept. 11 of each year.

Statements covering tax accounts that have become "certified delinquent" by the county auditor will bear that notation stamped across the face of the statement. This action, Dawson stated, will serve to notify property owners who have become delinquent in their taxes that the total tax as shown by the statement is subject to interest at 8 per cent per annum for years subsequent to 1937.

In addition to the interest charge, a redemption fee of 25 cents must be paid to remove each tract or lot from the "certified delinquent" list. This procedure is in keeping with the present state laws and must be adhered to in order to clear taxes which have become certified. The interest and redemption fee charges are made by the county auditor and cannot be determined until actual payment is anticipated or tendered. At the time statements are mailed those covering "certified delinquent" accounts will be accompanied by a bulletin issued by the treasurer, explaining in detail the interest charges and redemption procedure.

Should any taxpayer fail to receive his statement by Aug. 5, Dawson requests he immediately contact the treasurer's office, furnishing a complete description of the property involved, and a statement will be mailed at once.

Says Without Qualification Robin Moor Was Sunk By U-Boat

tionality was known to the submarine commander and was clearly indicated by her flag and markings.

Mr. Roosevelt said the general purpose of the sinking "would appear to be to drive American commerce from the ocean wherever such commerce was considered a disadvantage to German designs."

Its specific purpose, he said, "would appear to be interruption of our trade with all friendly countries."

"We must," he added, "take it that notice has now been served upon us that no American ship or cargo on any of the seven seas can consider itself immune from acts of piracy. Notice is served on us, in effect, that the German reich proposes so to intimidate the United States that we would be dissuaded from carrying out our chosen policy of helping Britain to survive."

"In brief, we must take the sinking of the Robin Moor as a warning that the United States may use the high seas of the world only with Nazi consent."

"Were we to yield on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German reich.

"We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield."

NEW SURTAXES TO INCREASE INCOME

Committee Proposal Will Hit Thousands of Non-Income Payers

The surtaxes would start at 5 percent on the first dollar of taxable income—that is, after all deductions and personal exemptions except the earned income credit—and rise gradually to the present maximum of 75 percent on incomes of $5,000.00 and over. The present defense surtax of 10 per cent was left unchanged and would apply to both normal and surtaxes.

Stiffest Imposts in History
This tax schedule, representing the stiffest imposts on personal income in the nation's history, was considerably less drastic, however, than that originally proposed by the treasury which would have started at 11 per cent.

The committee recommended that corporations be required to contribute an additional $1,255,200,000 in federal revenue through higher excess profits taxes and by a revision of the method of computing such profits.

The excess profits tax rates which now range from 25 percent to 50 percent would be boosted to 35 percent and 60 percent and in figuring such profits, business firms would not be allowed to deduct their regular income taxes and surtaxes, as heretofore. However, in estimating their regular taxes, the firms would be permitted to take credit for their excess profits taxes.

New corporation surtaxes of five percent would be imposed on surtax net incomes of $25,000 or less and of six percent on any amount in excess of that figure.
Corporations would be allowed an invested capital credit of eight percent on the first $5,000,000 of capital and of seven percent on anything higher. At present, they are allowed a straight eight percent credit. In other words, they do not have to pay excess profits taxes on profits up to eight percent of their invested capital.

The committee still has to decide on how much to increase inheritance and gift taxes and a wide variety of excise levies to produce the balance of the desired total to $3,500,000,000 or approximately $1.-019,100,000. These decisions, however, were deferred at least until next week.

RUBBER INDUSTRY MUST CUT OUTPUT

Ohio Plants Await Details On Curtailment of Production

(By Associated Press)
AKRON, June 20.—Executives of the rubber industry awaited from Washington today the details of a consumption curtailment program ordered by the OPM in the interests of building up defense reserves.

It was reported in the industry here that crude stocks on hand were good for about seven months, and finished goods for three months in addition.

Build Greater Stocks
The order for lower consumption was seen as a move to build greater stocks due to shipping uncertainties. About 97 per cent of the rubber used in the United States comes from the Far East.

From an annual rate of 817,003 tons originally estimated for this year, compared with an all-time high last year of 848,003 tons, the consumption will be reduced during the last half of 1941 to an annual rate of 600,000 tons, the OPM officials said in Washington.
About 150,000 tons a year are needed for defense purposes, and possibly more, executives of the rubber companies believe.

Time manufacturing, which requires about 70 per cent of the country's consumption, was expected to be affected to some extent. It was indicated that processors would be allotted a fixed percentage of their previous consumption, but would not be told which items to cut down.

Statistics on May 1
In addition to finished goods, manufacturers had stocks of 141,191 tons, dealers 10,720 and the government—through the Rubber Reserve Co.—177,856 tons when the industry's statistics were made up on May 1. There were 153,484 tons on the way from the Far East.

Three major processors, Good-year, Goodrich and Firestone, have stepped up their synthetic rubber facilities and are launching with government sponsorship the construction of additional synthetic plants good for about 30,000 tons a year.

GOOD HEALTH is an asset to NATIONAL DEFENSE

WORKERS MUST HAVE MACHINES SO THAT SOLDIERS CAN HAVE ARMS

This is the first essential of modern defense... Let it's only half the story. Defense workers and service men alike MUST have good health. "Defense" covers many fields... we are thinking of it in the personal light. That of defending yourself from that "let-down feeling" that comes with what the old folks called "spring fever." Your system naturally has been working at high speed, for many months. You need to be pepped-up, give the human factory a good overhauling. The months ahead can be filled with pleasures if you feel fit... but they can be drudgery if you're worn out and tired. Your neighbors throughout this section are co-operating in many ways to promote a program of better health. Why not a little Health Defense for you?

Pythian Sisters Have Party
Sixteen tables were in play at the card party given by the Pythian Sisters on Tuesday evening. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. William Klegmeyer of Leetonia and E. C. Cover of North Lima; "500" prizes by Mrs. George Taylor and Willis Miller of Columbiana; euchre prizes, Mrs. Ansel Senheiser and Russell Smith. The door prize went to Elmer Warner and the prize cake to Fred Kohler of New Middletown. Lunch was served. Another party will be held in two weeks.

Miss Fern Zimmerman, accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Oesch of Salem, left for Florida on Saturday evening where they will visit several weeks with the latter's daughters, Ruby and Joyce.

Mrs. Celestia Frankfort, daughter, Mrs. Ray Davis and Mrs. Janet Snedden were Cambridge, Pa., visitors Tuesday.

Mrs. W. L. Welkart, daughter, Mrs. Donald Harold and Mrs. David Welkart spent Wednesday at Toronto and Hammondsville.

Shirley Sanders of Sebring is spending a few days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wisler.

Spaniel Turns Retriever
REHOBOTH, Del. — Sambo, a black cocker spaniel, believes in keeping his master supplied with pocket change.
He constantly retrieves golf balls lost in woods adjacent to the Rehoboth Country club, bringing them home to Frank L. Chase, who reconditions and sells them back to club members.
No one has been able to explain Sambo's attraction for golf balls. He's retrieved more than 500 this year.

FALL RIVER, Mass. — David Hurwitz, proprietor of the State Coal company, reported to police that thieves loaded two of his trucks with coal and drove off. The next day, he said, the trucks were returned empty.

German automobile products cost twice as much in Switzerland as those of American origin, the department of commerce reports.

Latest for the Beach

Mary Howard

Latest in beach wear is worn by Mary Howard, screen player, above. The suit is of satin look, with a background of white and a palm leaf motif in red. Sashes of red complete the outfit.

Theatre Attractions

Paulette Goddard and James Stewart in a scene from "Pot o' Gold", showing at the State Friday and Saturday.

James Stewart, Paulette Goddard, Horace Heidt and his Musical Knights, and Charles Winninger are featured in "Pot o' Gold", musical comedy at the State tonight and Saturday.

Based on the band leader's radio show, the comedy involves an eccentric manufacturer of vitamin foods who hates music; his nephew who loves music and hates vitamin foods; the daughter of a boarding house keeper who hates the manufacturer and his family; and a band that needs only a chance to make the top.

Several new song hits are introduced in the picture, including "A Knife, a Fork and a Spoon"; "Hi Cy, What's A-Cookin'"; "Pete the Piper"; "Broadway Caballero"; "When Johnny Toots His Horn" and "Do You Believe in Fairy Tales?"

A double feature western program is booked for the Grand tonight and Saturday: "Silver Stallion", featuring David Sharpe, Chief Tonto Thundercloud, LeRoy Mason, Thunder, the horse, and Captain Boots, the police dog; and the Three Mesquiteers, Robert Livingston, Bob Steele and Rufe Davis in "Pa's of the Pecos".

Filling Out Legal Forms Is Not Practice of Law

COLUMBUS, June 20.—Real estate dealers may, without fear of violating bans against practicing law, fill out various legal paper forms in real estate transactions. They won that right from the Supreme Court yesterday in a decision that gave them a victory over attorneys who sought to restrain real estate men from filling out various papers on grounds such action was an unauthorized practice of law.

The opinion, upholding lower court rulings, said that the "supplying of simple, factual material such as the date, the price, the name of the purchaser, the location of the property, the date of giving possession and the duration of the offer requires intelligence rather than the skill peculiar to one trained and experienced in law."

The court also will hear the appeal of B. E. Totten of Trumbull county from lower court decisions dismissing his suit for $35,000 against the estate of his former partner J. E. Miller and the Cortland Savings and Banking Co. for alleged fraudulent practices in spending assets which he alleged belonged to the partnership.

About 90 percent of the feature films shown in New Zealand are American.

NINE SUMMONED IN JUNE 30 CALL

List of Soldiers-Elect from
Salem District Are

a short prayer service in the bus, by way of a spiritual sendoff. Clerk Griffiths of the Salem draft board attended a conference of Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana county draft officials, with executives of the state selective service system, in Youngstown yesterday.

Representing the state were Major Carl Wahl, in charge of mobilization; Col. C. W. Goble, state director; Major Berry of Columbus, of the medical division; and Col. Spencer, liaison officer between the United States war department and the state, on occupational deferment.

The district draft board officers were informed, during the course of the conference, that Ohio was one of the two top-ranking states in the matter of draft board efficiency to date.

Discussing draft problems in general, the state representatives also talked of tentative plans for the registration July 1 of men who had reached the age of 21 since last October 16, date of the first registration.

Today's New Soldiers

The group of 16 who left today included three volunteers — Lee Christen, William Franklin Norton of R. D. 2, Kensington, and John Donald Geiselman of R. D. 1, Moultrie, together with:

Louis Roy Barnes, 805 E. Pershing, Salem.

Robert Wayne Cameron, R. D. 1, Salem.

Walter Herbert Palmer, Alliance, Rudolph Falk, 496 Pershing, Salem.

Paul Frederick Williamson, R. D. 4, Salem.

Aquilino Dilduvico, 199 Oak, Leetonia.

Charles William Davidson, Jr., 464 Perry, Salem.

William George Wagner, 415 W. Pershing, Salem.

Warren Lewis Rhodes, Jr., R. D. 2, Salem.

Olin Hiram Conrad, R. D. 3, Alliance.

Daniel Herman, 581 Wilson, Salem.

John McQuiston, Jr., 855 N. Howard, Salem.

Joseph Eugene Isue, R. D. 1, Bayard.

John Earl Beckley, of R. D. 2, Carrollton, was scheduled to make the 17th member of this quota, but, because of illness, was unable to report today. He will be sent out later.

George W. Woertner, E. Pershing st., Salem, also a member of the original quota of 17, was deferred, however, because of occupational demands, and his place was given to Lee Christen.

anizations showed up this year at the May day parade in Moscow. The Soviet air force was estimated two years ago at about 9,000 planes, many of them out-moded. Newer and faster types have been reported built, but the Red air arm is a closely-guarded secret.

200 Ships in Navy

Naval strength of more than 200 ships is divided between the Baltic, Black, White and Caspian seas, in the Far East opposite Japan.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia claimed last autumn that Russia had the largest submarine fleet in the world, but gave no figures. The British manual, Jane's Fighting Ships, estimates that Russia has 170 submarines, with 30 building.

Any German-Russian war undoubtedly would call for use of these submarines, mainly in the Baltic and Black seas. The Nazis have been reported shipping submarines overland to the Rumanian black sea port of Constanta, an important springboard for any naval-supported attack on the Russian Ukraine and Caucasus.

2 Young Horsemen Gallop On Schedule

Kenneth "Half Pint" Taylor of Salem, and Ted Lawton of Canfield, both 13, out to see the west from horseback, were right on schedule today. The boys left Salem yesterday morning and planned as their first stop the Canton fairgrounds. Word received here this morning confirms that they arrived last night and stayed there with an old-time race driver, "Doc" Harmany, and his troupe.

The boys planned to stop tonight in Wooster, staying again at fairgrounds there. With their eventual destination unknown and their plans calling for "riding till our money runs out," the boys are heading in the general direction of central Indiana first. They plan a circular route that will take them through Fort Wayne, and Indianapolis.

A last minute change in the lineup saw the young Salem lad mount a new horse that his dad bought for him just before the trip started. The boys carried just a blanket and knapsack on their trip. They each have one change of clothes and plan to sleep at fairgrounds and farmhouses on the way. They will ride off to the side of the road.

Old River Boat Sinks but 112 Aboard Are Saved

—I. I. N. Phonephoto

All but one person, a cabin boy, were saved when the Golden Eagle, last of the old-time packet boats on the Mississippi river, struck an obstruction and sank near Chester, Ill. There were 55 passengers and 58 members of the crew aboard the old river boat when the accident occurred. A masquerade dance was in progress at the time. The boat is shown above after striking the obstruction.

FAIRFIELD

Miss Lois Rupert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Rupert and an honor graduate of Fairfield Centralized High school, class of 1939, was selected as an outstanding freshman woman at Baldwin-Wallace college, Berea, by the campus women's league at the close of the school year.

Miss Rupert maintained a perfect scholastic average of "A" in all subjects and in addition was active in freshman Y. W. C. A., the Writer's club, Modern Language club and a member of the campus newspaper staff.

Today's Pattern

MATRONS' COOL CAPE FROCK

Pattern 4786

Everything about this enchanting cape dress spells C-O-O-L-E-S-S. Cleverly designed by Anne Adams, Pattern 4786 will be the most comfortable, easy-to-wear summer frock in your wardrobe . . . still it's a perfect dress-up style. You'll be completely charmed by the soft, rippling grace of the cape that covers your arms almost to the elbows, yet is so airy and free and unbinding. Note the natural shoulder lines, so smart this season. The cape is held trim in front by darts above the waist. And here's a wonderfully cool idea; the bodice beneath the cape is incomplete—just a simple, sleeveless top that's like a slip! The skirt has slimming panels at both the front and the back. Do make this lovely style in a summery printed sheer.

Pattern 4786 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 3 3/4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

This summer, plan to have a complete, attractive wardrobe—with the Anne Adams Pattern Book for your sewing guide! All the smart, original designs in this book are promptly available in simple, accurate patterns. There are styles for every age and activity, with feminine sheers and prints, "tom-boy" playclothes, beach modes, travel wear, soap 'n' water cottons, new accessories. ## Would Bring Back 'Home of Yesterday'

An appeal to parents to "bring back the home of yesterday's" was made by Maurice Raymond Arner, widely known educator and principal of the McKees Rocks, Pa., High school, in an address to the Salem Kiwanis club following its weekly luncheon at noon yesterday in the Memorial building.

Arner, speaking on "Youth in a Confused World", pointed out that young people need sympathy and understanding. He asserted that in spite of everything, education or religion could do, they could not furnish a substitute, if they were lacking, for the comfort and strength that a happy, sympathetic home provides. Modern homes are too apt to shake off their responsibilities, he said.

He recognized, however, that sympathy could be carried too far, to the point where it ceases to be sympathy and becomes indulgence. Arner, who has been teaching for over 18 years, 15 in secondary

PICTURE FRAMING

A worthy frame for that cherished photograph will do two things—make it look even more attractive, and give it the protection it needs. To stand, or to hang on the wall or to carry—there are frames to suit your picture and please your purse.

Speaking of pictures—the snapshots that remind us of pleasant days and places—unless mounted in an album are so often damaged or lost. Albums from 25c up. New Zipper Albums, $1.50—$2.50.

37TH DIVISION
GETTING TOUGH

ALEXANDRIA, La. June 20—Camped deep in the kisatchie national forest, living in pup tents, Ohio's 37th division waits its call to the front Saturday or Sunday to launch maneuvers with the 32nd division from Michigan and Wisconsin.

Although the region has been soaked in recent weeks with unusually hard rains—23 inches during May and the first part of June compared with a normal of 8.7 inches—the soldiers are living high and dry in a well-drained location. Division headquarters is located in a five-room farm house, and pine and oak trees virtually hide the camp from the nearby road. Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler of Columbus commands the division.

A sergeant, remarking there was virtually no illness in the camp, added: "We are getting tough."

Freight car loadings in May were at the highest level since 1930, says the department of commerce.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"Surely you must realize that the old order is tottering—is, in fact, doomed?" Nadia continued.

The tall American's laugh was quite harsh. "No, I don't; but aside from that, I don't like red Russia. I don't think the way you people tortured poor La Tour before they shot him was very sporting."

"Sporting? Bah!" Nadia Stefan gestured violently with that pistol which looked incongruous in her small hand. "You take all this as a game? Well, it is not. We in Russia are in earnest; our success means life or death; for us there is nothing in the world but the triumph of Communism."

"In other words you believe that the end justifies the means?" North demanded, and with his handcuffed hands held awkwardly out before him, sank onto the arm of chair.

"Of course the end justifies the means," Josef put in, fixing the prisoner with baleful, staring eyes. "The death of every third person in the world would justify the ultimate triumph of Marxism."

"I can't agree with you," North observed patiently. "And now, mademoiselle, you can't blame me if I'm a bit curious as to what's next on the program."

While Nadia meditated, North looked about to make a mental photograph of the room. It was well furnished—very well furnished in fact, and in excellent taste.

There were, moreover, several very decent Chinese jades scattered about. And yonder was that wide modernistic desk he had noted on entering. That desk—would he ever probe its possibilities?

"If you make no trouble you will be taken upstairs," Nadia announced, "and locked in a little room, especially prepared for guests like you. If you stay quiet, but if you prove troublesome—"

"Ah, now you become interesting!" North manufactured a tight smile, but at the same time he asked himself why she did not have him shot, and off her hands. She must have known it was the logical, the safest thing for her to do. Why did she look at him so intently?

"If you prove troublesome, it will simply be a case of sayo-nara, you know. Good-bye."

Over him burst a great dazzling hope, and he fixed on her a lingering and insatiable look. Sure enough—the faintest tinge of color crept into her cheeks as she got to her feet and passed the pistol over to her massive companion, before sauntering across the wide gray rug toward him.

"Look at me," she invited, with what seemed like natural simplicity. "I wish everything in this affair were as easy as that," he replied and, with frank curiosity, studied her visage in detail.

The perfect oval of her face loomed a little nearer, and he became aware of a faint perfume that stirred in him senses he thought he had long since had completely under control. To his dismay, he suddenly found himself wondering just why he had ever opposed this exquisite creature's wishes? The realization was a distinct and a sobering shock.

"What! Was he, Hugh North, doubting his own self-control after all these years? He tried to tear his eyes away, but instead found fascination in trying to read the thoughts behind Nadia Stefan's delicate and quite composed features. Her red lips became curved into a slow smile, and guessed that she was luxuriating in the knowledge of her ascendancy over him!

"You will go upstairs with Josef, no?" she suggested. "I could have you killed at once, mon Capitaine, and I—I should." He seemed to detect a confusion in her thoughts.

"But I like your gallantry, I like to talk to you, and there are few men in the world to whom I have said that in earnest—so I will think about your fate a little while."

With a long forefinger, she almost patronizingly brushed his cheek. "You will do as I say?"

Captain North was more himself again. After the contact of her finger he manager to murmur: "After what you've just said, I'd be ungracious to say no."

"Very well, Josef, please show the Captain to his room."

At last North managed to tear his eyes from Nadia Stefan's lovely visage, thus regaining a measure of equilibrium. Rising from the chair into which he had sunk, he cast a swift glance at the desk covered with the litter of papers, which had lured him into the library. Written on them he recognized Chinese ideographs, Japanese symbols, and awkward Russian characters.

Now a sudden cold fury filled him; the fury of a clever man who finds himself hopelessly outwitted when his goal is almost within reach.

Having given her directions, Nadia Stefan seemed to have entirely dismissed the tall handcuffed man from her thoughts. Turning her back, she coiled rather than seated herself in a big emerald-green armchair that set off her superb figure as a jewel case sets off a gem.

"Don't you think, Josef," she observed, through a cloud of cigarette smoke, "that you had better take Captain North away before he tries to read more of what's on my desk?"

Josef made an unpleasant noise at North and frowned in the girl's direction. "Sorry, Captain. Commander, Come—turn about, you!"

North faced the hall door which stood half ajar. It was, he noticed, solidly built of teak.

"Goodnight, mademoiselle," he called over his shoulder, and felt his nerves crisping at what he contemplated. "Thank you for one of the most diverting evenings of my sinful career."

Nadia Stefan, already immersed in a sheaf of documents, inclined her coppery head a little. "See you soon, my gallant Captain."

With Josef holding the silenced automatic at the small of his back and only a short step behind, North strode to the exit, brushing the edge of the library door. As his body swung past, his right heel shot back with incredible speed, kicked the edge of the teak door, and flung it violently backwards.

"Yes," North said. "Because, unless I greatly misjudge you, you have made a fool of it."

Another moment of silence ensued, pierced by the cacophonous wailing of a Chinese fiddler in the street outside.

"Come," spoke North sharply. "Where is it?"

He started and realigned the revolver when one of her hands glided to the front of the white evening dress and reappeared with what appeared to be a lopstick contained.

"Voila," she laughed and tossed the bright cylinder onto the floor. It rolled a few inches and came to rest beside Josef's pointed head.

Still North avoided her eyes and cast a sidewise glance at the litter of papers spread out on the desk. Bait, that's what it was—probably not one page yonder meant much. Still, there might be something of unsuspected value among them.

So he directed, "Get the key for these handcuffs out of Josef's pocket and lay it on the desk. Also," he added with ominous pleasantness, "be sure, mademoiselle, that it's only a key you produce."

She obeyed. Silence prevailed while he freed himself of the handcuffs and advised, "Always handcuff your prisoners' hands behind him."

Nadia Stefan thanked him. "Merci!" was all she said.

"And now," North directed, "I want you to open that lipstick container and hold that paper up where I can see it. No, don't come close."

Silently Nadia Stefan responded. He saw that it was the original message.

"You're foolish to persist in this affair, mon Capitaine," she remarked suddenly. "Not even you can stop what is to be."

He said: "Since you seem to know what is to be, I'm going to take you with me."

"Ah, another Lechnivar?" she commented; then she grimaced in sudden anger. "Bah! You would not dare!"

"On the contrary," the intelligence captain replied evenly, "I do dare. And now, if you don't mind, I'm going to collect a few things from that desk."

MULLINS DEFEATS DRISCOLLWOOD TO TAKE EARLY LEAD

Defeat Runner-up of First Round 6-3; China Takes Electric Furnace

The winner and the runner-up in the opening round of city softball played again last night—and again the champion won. It was Mullins, behind the heavy hitting of Zatkoff, over Driscollwood, 6-3.

Four runs in the third inning, to bring Mullins up from behind, and two in the fifth to put them definitely ahead, comprised the Mullins scoring.

The victory considerably brightens Mullins' chances of conquest in the second round. They're getting the hard teams out of the way early.

Brudely allowed only four hits as the Salem China swamped the Electric Furnace last night, 9-2. The two Furnace runs were tallied in the first inning. The China ran up a total of six in the fifth, to make it their heavy-scoring frame.

Placentia Host To New Castle Champs

Lake Placentia will play the Lawrence Indians of New Castle, Pa., on the Lake diamond at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The Indians, two-year city champs of New Castle, and Lawrence county winners last year, are leading their league with 14 victories and one defeat this season.

Featured Tribe players include Joe Wilk, former Pitt U. pitcher, Henry Kozela, outfielder, with Warren of the Penn State league, and George Byak of the Mid-Atlantic league.

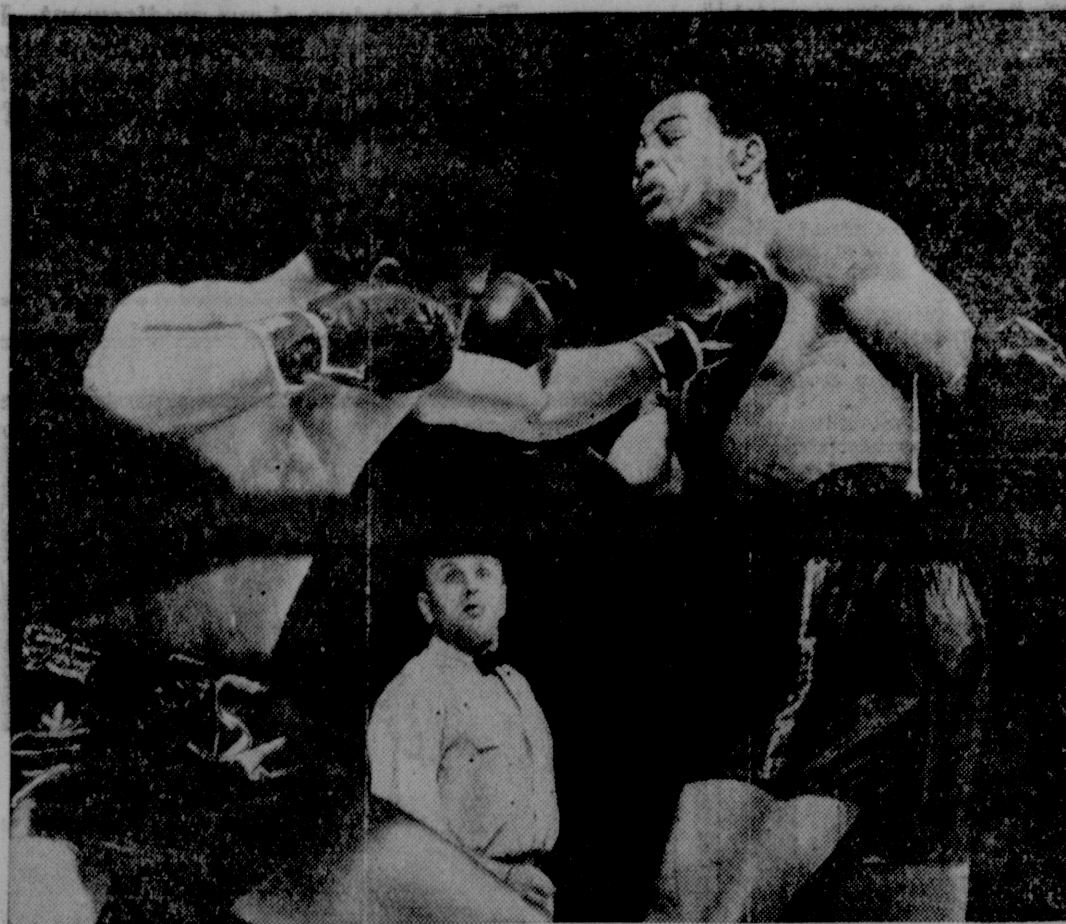

Either Schepfer or Art Maley, home from Ohio State, will hurl for the Lakers.

Alliance Booking

Conn Lost, but Louis Knew He Was in a Fight

Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh fighter who outpointed Joe Louis for 12 rounds in their New York bout only to be kayoed in the 13th, did plenty of damage to the champion during the fight. Here he throws a punch that really hurt Louis.

Claims Natural Instinct For Baseball Far More Important Than Intelligence

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK—Whenever we hear an irate fan make reference to a "dumb" ball player, we always think of that old story about Eddie Collins, and often wonder how much brains really count for in actual competition.

You may recall that one about Collins. The story goes that old Connie Mack was telling a rookie on the bench one day to emulate Collins in everything he did.

"There," said Mack, "is the smartest ball player of all time." That was in Collins' last active year when he was playing second base on a dime as the ball players say.

Just then a hard hit grounder shot past Collins that any rookie would have nabbed, and our prize package on the bench remarked: "Yeh, that Collins may be smart all right but I notice he can't out-think those hard grounders."

Instinct May Be Best
Offhand, we can think of a score of ball players who may not have been rivals to Prof. Einstein off the diamond but who never made a dumb play in their lives. These fellows did the right thing instinctively, and we often wonder if instinct in a game isn't much more valuable than sound reasoning.

For instance, Babe Ruth was no mental giant off the field but when did you ever see him throw to the wrong base?

We feel sure that Babe never thought out any play in advance. He merely let the play happen and then made the right move by instinct.

On the other hand, we have known brilliant college graduates who might easily have been listed as dumb ball players. In a spot requiring instant action they appeared to need a few seconds to reason things out and by the time they had the play figured out it was too late.

Then there was the one and only Dizzy Dean! He was no colossus of thought off the field but a mental giant on it, judged solely by results. When Frankie Frisch was manager of the Cardinals, he told me one day that nobody ever had to tell Dean anything.

"That bird has a memory like an elephant," said Frisch. "Let a busher he has never seen before hit a low outside curve off Dean where and he'll never forget it. He in a Spring exhibition game some may not see that hitter again for years, but when he does, he'll remember that he was the bird who hit the low outside curve on him."

McGraw's Method Recalled
It is no secret that John McGraw never had a very high opinion of his players' mentality on or off the field. In fact, everybody knows that he used to signal every pitch for almost all of his pitchers.

McGraw believed, however, that no matter how dumb a player might be, he could be made to appear smart by being forced to make the same play over and over again until it became second nature with him.

We recall one Spring—if memory serves it was 1927—when Shanty Hogan joined the Giants. That year the pitchers and catchers were taken to Hot Springs for two weeks preliminary training. The eagle-eyed McGraw quickly discovered that among other things Hogan didn't know was how to make the play on a run-up between third and home.

Chinaman Kept on the Hop
McGraw insisted that there should never be more than one throw on such a play and that it should be from the catcher to third base. We had a Chinese rookie infielder with us that Spring, and we will never forget how McGraw kept that poor fellow running up and down the base line for two hours while Freddy Lindstrom and Shanty Hogan perfected that play to a split second.

And to this day we have never heard of Hogan failing to make that particular play correctly.

Heinie Mueller Tries to Dodge
McGraw had his share of dumb ones and smart ones but, with all his meticulous coaching, even he couldn't make them all smart. For instance, there was Heinie Mueller, who was smart enough off the diamond but prone to some terrible mental lapses on the field.

Playing on a wet field one day, Heinie turned his back to the infield while the tying run crossed the plate, then paused to wipe off the muddy ball while the fans howled in anguish. Then, to top everything, he made a wild and inexcusable, throw to the plate and the winning run scored.

Heinie tried to duck, but McGraw caught up with him and in sulphuric tones that blistered the paint off the dug-out, he yelled: "You dumb blankety-blank-blank, tonight I'm shipping you to Toledo."

And that's exactly where Heinie went that night.

Eagles Play Barborton
The Salem Eagles will play the Barborton Eagles at 2 p. m. Sunday at Centennial park. All players are to report at the club rooms at 1:30 p. m.

He wasn't hurt, but Hal Benne, ace moundsman of the Springfield Greys, a New York semi-pro club, needed a new batter's helmet after being hit by a "bean" ball. His helmet was cracked. His skull wasn't.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, June 20.—(The Special News Service)—Lettover bits of cauliflower: Billy Conn's been offered $25,000 to make the movie of Octavus Roy Cohen's fight story, "Kid Tinsel."... Incidentally, the movies of the fight show Billy wasn't hit with a single right-hand punch through the 13 rounds so long as he kept his left hand high.... Louis dealt it off the arm only when the glamor boy forgot and dropped his port paw.... Louis' ring earnings to the penny are $1,987,653.96 in 54 fights in seven years—not counting the fun he's had knocking guys' ears off.... and in case you've forgotten, Conn turned down $200,000 just a year ago to tangle with Louis, for which he got $77,000 night before last.

Rounding Up the Strays
Mike Jacobs had Ancil Hoffman on the phone last night, trying to line up an Abe Simon-Buddy Baer brawl for Los Angeles in August.... Now that the door's closed for either of 'em to take on Mr. Big.... Larry MacPhail spent $22.50 to call up Tom Sheehan, the Minneapolis manager, to find out his Brooklyn elbowers should pitch to Coaker Triplett, the Cards' clouter from Columbus.... Chances are Conn'll get the call over Nova for Louis' September outing because of the gate 'Billey'll draw.

Today's Guest Star
Kenneth Jones, Peoria Journal-Transcript: "How times change. Metropolitan papers are running color stories of the umpires now." (Remember the good old days when the umps did the running, pals?)

Two writing gents who took Conn's loss more to heart than any of 'em were our Sid Feder and the New York Journal's Hype Igoe.... They were first to pick Billy to beat the Bomber, way back last winter.

As a reminder for those who said Mel Ott was all through a year ago, the "oldest white child born in the Polo Grounds" has hit 17 homers so far this season, and already is only two away from his 1940 total.... Ancil Hoffman and Mike Jacobs have cut up $35,000 as the first take on the Buddy Baer-Joe Louis fight pictures.... and, brothers, that ain't tin....

"Blackout" Baseball Plan Hailed By Semi-Pro Prexy

NEW YORK—Ray Dumont is a serious man today about his suggestion that baseball be played in total darkness—that is, without lights and with only the illumination that phosphorus bats, balls and baselines would give.

Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball congress, first advocated the "glow-worm" as a gag to help bring the crowds out to his national tournament at Wichita, Aug. 15-28.

But since government officials recently advocated conservation of the electricity used in night games for national defense requirements, Prexy Dumont has changed the name of his novel proposal to "blackout baseball."

He has suggested that each of the state championship tournaments in July experiment to decide whether the plan is feasible.

If the experiment is successful and the government does ban baseball under lights, it is possible that phosphorus paint will replace the arcs.

Dumont said the initial expense to start the experiment will be about $300 for the first game. It will require about six gallons of phosphorus to illuminate the park. Each player will have to wear a special phosphorus painted cap and all gloves will have to be illuminated.

The baseballs will have to be re-pointed each game because continuous pounding will make them less visible.

"The idea seems silly, I'll admit," Dumont said, "but I've talked to a number of scientists and they say it will be easier for a player to see a white object against total black background."

It was pointed out that young couples who enjoy sitting in darkened movie theater balconies will find the environment at the "black-out games" much more inviting!

And what about the umpire? Oh, yes—all you'll see of him will be his phosphorus painted hands. That, of course, will be a disappointment for the fan who likes to call the umpire "Ugly" but a welcome improvement to the one who says the less he sees of an umpire, the more he enjoys the game.

It was what I wanted him to do," Johnny insisted stoutly. "I wouldn't have wanted him to win dancing around. It would have been tinsel. I told him to fight the way he wanted."

Everybody within earshot knew Johnny was lying gallantly; that he had implored his hot-headed fighter to play it smart right to the end, but that Conn was flushed with battle and wouldn't listen. Ray, nevertheless, said he was as proud of Billy as if he had won.

Clinging Vine Supplanting Female Of Dominating Type

CHICAGO, June 20.—(The Special News Service)—The boys who have been scared to death that women, homely and otherwise, can snare them into wedlock against their will with the "moral dominance" technique can breathe easier now.

For the make-them-feel-like-dogs method of catching a man not only is unnecessary, except perhaps for a comparatively few "desperate damsels," but the males so trapped aren't worth having anyway.

They're likely to be "frustrating, dissatisfying, and exasperating." So said Mrs. Evelyn Mills Duvall, executive director of the Association for Family Living, today when she tossed a feminine wet blanket on the "moral dominance" theory expounded by Dr. Robert N. McMurtry, central Y. M. C. A. college psychologist.

Dr. McMurtry's Theory
Any marriageable woman in America, no matter how plain or ill-favored she may be, can snare a husband—and a good one too—Dr. McMurtry said, if she will employ the almost escape-proof formula of "moral dominance." It was designed especially to catch the "mamma boys," the overly conscientious, and males with strong feelings of inferiority, who, he said, fall quite easily when a woman makes them feel "just like dogs" in compromising situations, real or imagined.

"Dr. McMurtry's 'mouse trap' theory is both unfortunate and outmoded," said Mrs. Duvall, adding "it simply does not fit so far as modern women are concerned." "It would be a desperate damsel indeed who would resort to Dr. McMurtry's system of 'moral dominance,'" said Mrs. Duvall who has worked with thousands of young women on marriage problems. She teaches courses on the subject in Pestalozzi Froebel Teachers college, Chicago, and the National College of Education in Evanston.

Including the angle of "how to get your man." She's married and the mother of two children.

"The idea that the male is the dominant sex," she continued, "has validity. Women just don't like to be dominant over their men. The man who yields constantly is frustrating, dissatisfying and exasperating."

"Women want to live with their men—not for them."

Would Rather Be Chased
"A girl would rather be chased than chased. She'd rather be caught than catch. As a last resort she might swallow her feminine pride and 'go after him' but she won't like it—or him—or herself for having done so."

"The majority of young people are marrying for companionship today. The woman no longer has to marry to get a meal ticket; she can do pretty well for herself. Nor does the man have to marry for a housekeeper; modern society can take care of the creature comforts of the unmarried man quite satisfactorily."

In carrying on their campaigns of "moral dominance," Dr. McMurtry advised girls to take a tip from Adolf Hitler and always take the offensive. Mrs. Duvall, assailing this as psychologically unsound except for really "desperate damsels," said:

"If a girl has to resort to a device, why not use one that's more common, and certainly far safer—the clinging vine technique, which, although it's just another form of entrapment, is more effective than its opposite, the Hitler domination technique."

"It's the 'Oh, I need you—you big strong man' approach that will arouse in the mamma boys, the overly conscientious and the bashful the protective spirit—the feeling that she needs him—in fact can't get along without him. It gives him the feeling he's so strong and she's so weak, and may arouse, for the first time in the man's life, the feeling of his own great importance."

Technique Is Proved

"The validity of the clinging vine technique is proved by the fact that most men tend to marry women slightly inferior to themselves, intellectually especially, and emotionally to some extent."

"Men are afraid of women who are too able, too smart, too dominant."

"Under Dr. McMurtry's 'mouse-trap' theory the woman would develop into a nagging and hen-pecking wife. She would have to, out of her frustration that her husband is not strong enough."

"The same arguments hold good against the clinging vine technique. After a while the wife gets tired of being a clinging vine and threatens their relationship every time she relinquishes the role. Either is a device, a trap. The only difference lies in their bait."

"In our schools we work on the theory that by the time a girl is 20 she should be able to get along with the opposite sex—to have a feeling of her social adequacy, so she doesn't feel bashful or self-conscious or need to resort to a device. She's an easy person to know and enjoys men as companions. That comes from wide social experience."

"The relatively few girls who do not have social adequacy are the ones who are isolated. Perhaps because when in school they were prohibited from having dates, from dancing, and from other worthwhile social experiences, by which they learn to be comfortable with other people."

Ohioans to Boost 1941 Tourist Trade

COLUMBUS, June 20.—Motivated by a desire to double Ohio's tourist income, the youthful state development and publicity commission completed arrangements today for its first major venture—a six-day tour of Buckeye beauty spots and interest points for some 50 newsmen, travel agents and automobile club representatives. Coming from more than a dozen states and the dominion of Canada, the commission's guests will travel by chartered bus from Monday morning through Saturday to most of the major cities, state parks and areas of scenic or historical interest.

Sonny Vanderbilt Weds Bride In Ohio Village

Scion of one of the wealthiest and most social prominent clans in the United States, Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney, 42, marries Eleanore Searle, 32, at her home town of Plymouth, O., in a simple ceremony. Pictured outside Plymouth's First Lutheran church, where the bride was once a choir member, are, left to right, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, mother of the bridegroom, Cornelius V. Whitney, the bridegroom, Eleanore Searle, the bride, and the George Searles, the bride's father and mother.

"There will be no industrial stops," said R. F. Schulkers, executive secretary of the commission. "Due to the season, we are concentrating on points of tourist interest. Later a similar trip may be made to acquaint out-of-staters with Ohio's industrial possibilities."

"Government statistics show that in 1939 Ohio received $366,000,000 from recreational travelers' retail expenditures. That figure will be increased this year, and next year we hope to double it."

Schulkers said federal reports listed Ohio third in volume of tourist revenue—following New York with $677,000,000 and California with $541,000,000 annually.

"Traffic now passes through Ohio," Schulkers said. "Our aim is to educate travelers to the advantages of stopping and spending a few days in the state."

The commission, created in April, 1940, is augmenting its campaign through distribution of 50,000 copies of a 24-page booklet portraying pictorially some of the state's most noted parks and metropolitan points. Most of the publicity is designated for out-of-state consumption.

"However," Schulkers added, "we are as anxious to convince Ohioans as well as anyone else of the natural playground available here."

Thousands of people travel many miles out of the state in search of beauty and recreational facilities that are at hand only a short distance from their homes.

The tour itinerary, includes overnight stops at Cincinnati, Marietta, Cleveland, Cedar Point, Toledo and Columbus.

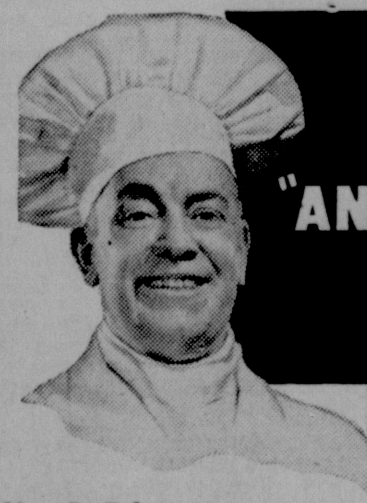

One of the pioneer, millionaire residences of San Francisco is being demolished under the terms of the will of the late Mrs. Charles A. Rossier. She explained in her last testament that the house had been built by her father and she could not stand the thought of its being occupied by strangers or turned into a lodging or boarding house.

BLUFFTON, Ind.—The proceedings of a funeral in a Bluffton church were interrupted when the loudspeaker system suddenly swung into a staccato police call. Radio technicians explained that a "harmonic"—a jump of a broadcast from its sending wave to another wavelength—was responsible for the incident. A police call had "jumped" to the church public address system.
